From Christina Soontornvat, the visionary and versatile author of two 2021 Newbery Honor Books, comes a high-seas adventure set in a Thai-inspired fantasy world. In a fantasy adventure every bit as compelling and confident in its world building as her Newbery Honor Book A Wish in the Dark, Christina Soontornvat explores a world where every image has a purpose. The Last Mapmaker is the latest middle grade novel from award-winning author Christina Soontornvat. I couldn't wait to read it after absolutely loving All Thirteen by the same author. At its heart, it is an adventure story with magic, historical fiction, and coming-of-age components mixed in. Twelve-year-old Sai is the daughter of a mapmaker. She has worked her way onto a ship sailing toward the unknown—as long as no one discovers the truth about her past. Twelve-year-old Sai is from the marshy Fens, an area whose residents are looked down upon. But with the right clothing and some quick thinking, Sai becomes the mapmaker's assistant on a voyage to chart unknown waters. Violence includes harsh punishment like whipping; animals, especially baby tigers, are also present.

Both the world and the characters are written with a stunning amount of vibrance and depth. I believe that any character in the story could easily be the main character of another story that would be just as compelling as this one. The story is mostly fast-paced.
